

JULY 9TH - 17TH 2019

A shining jewel set in a silver sea, the island of Mallorca lies in the Mediterranean off the east coast of Spain. Though politically part of Spain, the local inhabitants are fiercely independent and regard themselves as Mallorquin first and Spanish second, speaking their own native dialect in addition to Spanish.

The island is at once small enough to be easily manageable, but large enough to provide a variety of landscapes and resources. From the mountains of the northwest to the fertile central plain, there is an abundance of historical and artistic treasure to occupy the discerning visitor. And of course, you will get to visit the beautiful beaches that are beloved of European tourists in the summer months.

The College of New Jersey has offered graduate level summer courses in Mallorca since 1981, serving teachers and administrators who work at some of the world's finest international schools. Currently classes are held at Bellver International College, on the south shore of the island, near the Marivent Palace where King Felipe VI and his family spend their summers.

Our base for the first part of the trip, will be the historic town of Soller, set in the beautiful Tramuntana Mountains. Soller is accessible to the capital, Palma, by a wonderful antique electric train that affords incredible views as it weaves up through the mountains and out the other side. The second part of the trip we will be based in the capital, Palma, near the TCNJ summer campus, with opportunities for tour participants to interact with current Mallorca program students.

We will be guided throughout by local resident Gavin Miller. English by birth, after attending Cambridge University, Gavin made his home on the island, where he runs a local theatre company and leads tours.
